SUPPLEMENT TO THE CURRENT LIST

It has been a common library practice from time to time to post a list of new acquisitions upon the blackboard in the reading room for the information both of the readers and of the library staff. In the last two years the Army Medical Library, in an endeavor to reach beyond the four walls of its ancient building, has issued three or four times a year, a simple checklist of short titles of all the books, pamphlets, and periodicals acquired during the previous four or five months.

This checklist has been mimeographed in about 200 copies and has been itself titled; "Recent Book Acquisitions." The last issue (No. 1 of Volume 3) appeared in April, 1940. It was mailed to medical libraries, certain Army hospitals, as well as to agencies of the of the U. S. Public Health Service. As far as we are aware, there are only a few American libraries which are prosperous enough to possess a "Bulletin" of their own in which the ambitious members of their staff can find an outlet for their ideas. In some cases a library will be fortunate enough to have a close connection with the publication of a scientific society and to be able to publish the list of its recently purchased books in such a vehicle even when it has no organ of its own.

To put its temporary booklist into a more lasting and more attractive form, The Librarian of the Army Medical Library now gladly accepts the generous offer of the Medicofilm Service to issue the formerly mimeographed list of Recent Acquisitions in the Current List of Medical Literature which is published by that service under the auspices of our Friends. These checklists will be supplements only and not more than six or eight in number will be issued yearly so that they will in no way break into the regular weekly flow of the list of journal articles.

The numbering of these supplementary book lists, as well as their pagination, will be independent of the weekly Current List. The various entries are written in long lines instead of in two columns a page. The subject groups under which the acquisitions are arranged are also slightly different from those found in the weekly Current List.

For the intelligent use of the checklist of recent acquisitions, it should be understood that the Army Medical Library receives much more than the material included here. The checklist contains only those independent publications for which regular author cards have been prepared by the library staff, and only those theses which contain 50 or more pages. It should be also clear a priori that the acquisition only is recent; the book itself is not necessarily so. In order to make a search for new books easier, nearly everything printed before 1900 has been squeezed in to the group of "Old Books - Facsimile editions - Texts."

The first supplementary issue could not be made bulky and it had to be limited to 24 pages. There was place only for about half of the prepared checklist, which now forms Supplement No. 1 of the Current List of the Literature or No. 2, Vol. 3, of the former mimeographed list. The second half of the book list will soon follow as Supplement No. 2 to complete the list of acquisitions up to the end of 1940. These book-list supplements will be mailed free to the same institutions which have been previously receiving it from the Army Medical Library. It is perhaps superfluous to add that our checklist is not a list of so-called "approved" or "recommended" books. Possession is not approval.

One more word as to the microfilming of the publications here listed. As a general rule, the Microfilm Service does not reproduce recent books or theses, or parts of books, because this is an infringement of the Copyright Law. Moreover a microcopy will often cost more than the original book. Most of the listed publications are available either by purchase from a book shop or by loan from the Army Medical Library through the interlibrary loan system.

C.F.M.

Inquiries for microfilming hardly accessible monographs or old, out-of-print books should be sent to: Microfilm Service,
Army Medical Library,
7th St., & Independence Ave., S.W.,
Washington, D.C.
